Dear Colleague,

Throughout our history HSBC has been where the growth is, connecting customers to opportunities. We enable businesses to thrive and economies to prosper, helping people fulfill their hopes and dreams and realize their ambitions. It is a privilege to serve our clients and communities in this way and we therefore have an obligation to do what is right and conduct ourselves with integrity at all times, delivering fair outcomes for our customers.

We are all here to make customers’ dreams a reality – they are the reason we come to work each day. Every time we make a decision, there are customers impacted. Putting customers first means when you make a decision ask ‘How would I want to be treated?’ – Are we being responsive, respectful and considerate? In order to achieve sustainable, profitable returns and revenue growth while delivering fair outcomes for our customers, we need a greater focus on our customers across all functions and lines of business. Essentially, we need to put customers at the heart of each decision.

Every one of us has a critical role to play in this and I see daily examples of employees taking action to do the right thing.

To help you, we have collected here in one place several very important statements and policies regarding our principles, values, ethics and conduct.

Taking ownership for doing the right thing means acting accordingly, asking the right questions, and speaking up if you have concerns. This document provides both guidance for when you should speak up and contacts for doing so, and I am personally committed to ensuring you have a safe and supportive environment to report any possible violations of policy.

Thank you for taking the time to review this document carefully and for your ongoing commitment to make HSBC a place where we put customers at the heart of each decision and where we are all proud to work.

Sandra Stuart
President and Chief Executive Officer
HSBC Bank Canada
HSBC Group Values

Our Purpose
Throughout our history we have been where the growth is, connecting customers to opportunities. We enable businesses to thrive and economies to prosper, helping people fulfill their hopes and dreams and realize their ambitions. This is our role and purpose.

Courageous Integrity
All employees are expected to act with courageous integrity in all they do. This guiding principle means having the courage to make decisions based on doing the right thing but without ever compromising the ethical standards and integrity on which the company was built.

Values
HSBC’s values describe how we interact with each other and with customers, regulators and the wider community. All employees are expected to know and reflect our values in their day-to-day behaviour.

The following three statements summarize our values and each one is expanded to describe the behaviour that is expected for each statement.

- Dependable and do the right thing
  Stand firm for what is right, deliver on commitments, be resilient and trustworthy.

  Take personal accountability, be decisive, use judgement and common sense, empower others.

- Open to different ideas and cultures
  Communicate openly, honestly and transparently, value challenge and learn from mistakes.

  Listen, treat people fairly, be inclusive, value different perspectives.

- Connected to customers, communities, regulators and each other
  Build connections, be aware of external issues, collaborate across boundaries.

  Care about individuals and their progress, show respect, be supportive and responsive.
Compliance Values Statement

It is the policy of HSBC Bank Canada (the Bank) and its subsidiaries (together, “HSBC Canada”) to act honestly and fairly at all times in all its endeavours. HSBC Canada commits to conduct its business in compliance with the spirit and letter of all applicable laws and regulations, to adhere to high ethical standards, and to comply with standards of good market practice.

At HSBC Canada, we adhere to the values of HSBC Group as contained in the Compliance Policy Statement and Values. We believe that a strong culture of compliance is essential to our reputation, sustainability and success. As such, a culture of compliance must be the cornerstone of our business and drive everything that we do. All representatives of HSBC must act in a lawful manner, demonstrate high standards of business and personal conduct, act with honesty and integrity towards our customers, suppliers, regulators, the public, each other, and in the markets in which we participate. Every employee must demonstrate their commitment to our culture of compliance through adherence to the letter and spirit of the law, applicable policies and procedures and to our Statement of Business Principles and Code of Ethics. Any employee who identifies any irregularities must promptly report them.

HSBC Group Compliance Policy Statement

It is the policy of the HSBC Group (the Group) to observe high standards of integrity and fair dealing in the conduct of its business and to act with due skill, care and diligence.

To those ends, Group members should:

• comply with both the letter and spirit of all relevant laws, codes, rules, regulations and standards of good market practice in each jurisdiction around the world where they conduct business and when transacting business in their personal HSBC accounts; and

• ensure that any irregularities which arise are promptly resolved in a manner which minimizes financial loss and protects the good name and reputation of the Group;

• put the team’s interests ahead of the interest of the individual employee.

Management at all levels must ensure they, or their executives with delegated managerial responsibilities, are fully acquainted with the rules and regulations applying to the operations for which they have responsibility and that arrangements for ensuring compliance with legal/regulatory requirements are an integral part of the operational procedures of the business. Where managers become aware of possible breaches of laws or regulations, they must advise their Local Regulatory Compliance Officer.
HSBC Canada’s business principles direct how our business strategy is executed and they set the standard for how we make commercial decisions. They underpin the business conduct of all HSBC employees and, together with our values, play a critical role in protecting and enhancing our reputation and improving business performance. HSBC Canada is committed to the following business principles:

- Customer-focus: provide outstanding customer experience
- Financial strength: maintain capital strength and liquidity
- Risk management: be enterprising and commercial, understand and be accountable for the impact of our actions, take prudent decisions
- Speed: be fast and responsive, make principle-led decisions
- Performance-focus: drive leading, competitive levels of performance, act with urgency and intensity, prioritize, simplify
- Efficiency: focus on cost discipline and process efficiency
- Quality: pursue excellence
- Integrated: align the organization and break down silos
- Sustainability: take a long-term outlook, understand the impact of actions on stakeholders, brand and reputation

Conduct

Our principles and values are expressed in our management of conduct which is a critical component of all our business activities including our:

- strategy and business models
- culture and behaviours
- interaction with customers
- financial markets operations
- governance and oversight processes including our interaction with regulators

HSBC’s approach to conduct is designed to ensure we deliver fair outcomes for our customers and do not disrupt the orderly and transparent operation of financial markets. Focus on conduct is integral to HSBC’s values and principles, and supports the Group’s strategy for sustainable growth and streamlining of business processes and procedures.
Code of Ethics

This Code of Ethics is all about respect. Respect for the law. Respect for each other. Respect for our company and its assets. Respect for our customers. Respect for our competition. Respect for financial markets. Respect for the community outside of HSBC.

The requirements set forth in this Code of Ethics are intended to supplement and clarify the HSBC Group Values, HSBC Group Compliance Policy Statement, and HSBC Canada Compliance Values Statement and HSBC Charter. As an employee, or director of HSBC Canada, you must carefully read and comply with the Code of Ethics and other company policies. Where the requirements of this Code of Ethics differ from any requirements of a business specific policy, you must follow the more stringent requirements.

All employees, including contingent workers, are required to review this Code of Ethics and certify annually that they have complied in all respects with this policy.

Suppliers to HSBC Canada are expected to follow the general spirit of this Code of Ethics and share in our commitment to ethics and integrity.

Violations of this Code of Ethics or other company policies, or failure to report known violations, can subject you to consequence management, which may include termination of employment. In addition, if you should have, through the exercise of reasonable diligence, discovered violations of this Code of Ethics or other company policies, but fail to report them, you may be subject to consequence management, including termination of employment.

This Code of Ethics does not address all situations that may arise. It is a general guideline, rather than a complete set of rules and regulations for all situations. Should any question arise as to the interpretation of a particular principle or situation, you should refer your question to your supervisor or department head or Human Resources.

Processes for asking questions or for reporting violations, as well as key contacts, are provided at the end of this Code of Ethics.

Ask the Right Questions

To help meet our commitment to Global Standards, all employees are challenged to “ask the right questions.” For every business decision, you must ask:

- Is it legal and compliant? We need to meet both the letter and the spirit of the law.
- Is it commercially sensible? Do we really know the customer?
- Does it protect and enhance our reputation? Does it serve the interests of our communities and the financial markets in which we operate?

HSBC Charter

This Charter provides employees with guiding conduct statements and the values, ethics standards and principles of our organization. HSBC Charter (“Our Charter”) supplements this policy as a tool that can be used to make better decisions. Our Charter is designed to help when the right decisions aren’t obvious and we have to weigh competing interests in order to make the best decisions for our customers and our colleagues. Visit HSBC NOW to use Our Charter to guide you through tough decisions individually, or with your manager or team. You can also ‘commit’ to the Charter by signing up on the Charter page.
Respect for the Law

Numerous laws and regulations, both domestic and foreign, specifically govern various aspects of HSBC Canada's businesses and activities. Examples of these include securities, anti-money laundering, economic sanctions and anti-terrorist financing laws and regulations. In addition, laws and regulations of general applicability (such as employment equity, privacy laws, competition laws and regulations) affect HSBC Canada. Failure to comply with any of these applicable laws and regulations can have serious consequences to HSBC, including liability for damages and other penalties, and may include the risk of the employee personally being sued in a civil law suit.

HSBC Canada’s policy is to ensure that any irregularities which arise are promptly resolved in a manner which minimizes financial loss, treats customers fairly, and protects HSBC Canada’s reputation.

As an HSBC Canada employee, you have a responsibility to learn and understand the laws and regulations applicable to the activities of your business unit or function and your particular responsibilities within your business or function. If you have questions or identify unresolved irregularities, you should bring them promptly to the attention of your supervisor or department head and report any breaches to your compliance officer.

Preventing Financial Crime
HSBC has zero tolerance for financial crime. HSBC Canada is committed to furthering international efforts against money laundering, terrorist financing, sanctions evasion and bribery & corruption, including compliance with all laws and regulations pertaining to financial crime.

The HSBC Financial Crime Risk (FCR) is a global function dedicated to supporting HSBC to actively manage financial crime risk, and to enable HSBC to set the industry standard for knowing our customers and detecting, deterring and protecting against financial crimes such as fraud, money laundering, sanctions evasion and bribery & corruption.

Some important areas of the laws for you to be familiar with are:

Anti-Money Laundering
Facilitating financial transactions with knowledge that the proceeds are from illegal activity is a crime and contributes to the erosion of public confidence in the banking system. Therefore HSBC personnel must comply with the provisions of the Proceeds of Crime, Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing Act and its Regulations through adherence with HSBC Anti-Money Laundering Policy and Global Standards. Every employee should undertake the due diligence required to adhere to the Policy and Standards and raise concerns when they observe a suspicious transaction. Suspicious transaction reporting is one of our most important obligations under the Act and as such each of us is responsible to escalate any transaction that we suspect may be related to illegal activity for further investigation and possible filing with the Financial Transactions and Reports Analysis Centre of Canada - FINTRAC. HSBC is actively combating terrorist financing, corruption, and any other form of money laundering. Compliance with our Global Policy and Standards will allow us to fulfill our obligations to our fellow workers, our governing authorities, our parent company and our communities.

Sanctions
HSBC is committed to complying with Canada and other countries’ laws regarding sanctions, export/import restrictions and other trade embargoes, where applicable. We are supportive of Global Affairs Canada and its efforts to combat illicit financial transactions. As an employee, you are responsible for being aware of the Global Sanctions Policy, Local Country Supplement - Canada and any additional guidance contained in your line of business or department procedures.

Anti-Bribery & Corruption
HSBC Canada has a zero-tolerance approach towards bribery & corruption and considers such activity to be unethical and contrary to good corporate governance. The Group Anti-Bribery & Corruption Policy is consistent with the Group’s commitment to deliver fair outcomes for customers and not to disrupt the orderly and transparent operation of financial markets. HSBC Canada employees and any third party conducting activities on behalf of HSBC Canada, must not take any actions that violate or facilitate the violation of any anti-bribery & corruption laws or regulation (in any country in which we operate including Canada). All activity must be conducted without intent to bribe or corrupt. Bribery in this context is broadly defined and includes offering or receiving any advantage (financial or otherwise) with the intention of inducing improper behaviour for the benefit of HSBC Canada.

Bribery does not have to involve an actual payment and can take many forms such as a gift, business opportunity or travel and entertainment. You are expected to understand and comply with HSBC Global Anti-Bribery & Corruption policy and procedures, including any local HSBC Canada procedures.
Prevent Insider Trading
The improper or personal use of nonpublic information concerning HSBC or its affiliates, customers or suppliers is a violation of HSBC’s policies, and may subject both you and HSBC to penalties under various securities laws and regulations. Securities laws prohibit you from taking advantage of nonpublic “material information” about HSBC or its affiliates, customers or suppliers, or communicating such information to others. If you violate these laws, you may be personally subject to regulatory enforcement action as well as consequence management. Information about a company that may affect the market price or a person’s decision to invest in its stock is considered material information.

Employees are subject to restrictions on personal investments to mitigate the risk of insider trading and other potential misconduct.

Refer to the Global Regulatory Compliance Policy – Personal Account Dealing (the “Global Personal Account Dealing Policy”).

Theft / Fraud / Forgery / Misappropriation of Funds
Theft or deception of any sort as it relates to the Bank’s and its customers’ records, funds, property or assets is not tolerated. Manipulating account activity, falsifying accounts, forging signatures and documents and misappropriating funds are criminal offences and will be cause for termination.

Kiting
Cheque kiting is a type of fraud that usually involves two or more financial institutions and two or more accounts into which worthless (NSF) cheques are deposited to take advantage of the clearing system. One worthless cheque is deposited into an account and before it clears the system a second worthless cheque is deposited into the account on which the first cheque was drawn, thereby preventing what would have been an unauthorized overdraft or a chargeback. The process may be repeated many times, leading the institutions into believing that the accounts are in good standing because there are no chargebacks or apparent unauthorized overdrafts. In reality, the deposit of the worthless cheques has artificially inflated the accounts’ balances and the institutions are at risk of a loss. Kiting is often thought of as floating a loan for oneself without authorization and without having to pay interest. Even if the institutions do not suffer a loss, kiting is a criminal offence and will be cause for termination.

Criminal Convictions
All employees must disclose to Human Resources details regarding all criminal convictions from any Canadian or foreign court within two days of any such conviction.

Additionally, licensed employees have a regulatory requirement to report within two days to your member firm, any criminal charges, pleaded no contest to, or if you are granted an absolute or conditional discharge from any criminal offence in Canada or any foreign jurisdiction.

Employees who fail to report a conviction may be subject to consequence management up to and including termination of employment.

Taxes
HSBC Canada is committed to complying with the letter and spirit of all applicable tax laws. Further, we take steps to ensure that our customers do not use HSBC services to evade their tax obligations.

Investigations
As an employee, you are required to cooperate and comply with duly authorized investigations. You must tell the truth in such inquiries and are expected to provide the maximum level of cooperation. A lack of cooperation with an investigation by an employee is subject to severe employment repercussions, up to termination of employment.

Respect for Each Other

All employees are responsible for ensuring that the working environment is free of any form of harassment, discrimination, violence, intimidation, or inappropriate behaviour.

HSBC Canada is committed to diversity and equal opportunity. Supervisory personnel are reminded to hire, assess and reward employees strictly on the merit of qualifications and job performance. Because HSBC Canada respects each employee’s private life, social conscience and personal beliefs, supervisory personnel may not require employees to perform personal tasks nor attempt to coerce employees into supporting any particular public issue, social cause or political candidate.

HSBC Canada is committed to providing a healthy and safe workplace and complying with health and safety laws. All employees play an important role in creating and maintaining our healthy and safe workplace. All employees are to take every reasonable and necessary precaution to ensure their own health and safety as well as that of their co-workers, and to report any condition or practice that you believe may be hazardous.

Conflicts of Interest
A conflict of interest arises when your personal interest, or an obligation you owe to someone else, comes into conflict with your obligation to HSBC Canada and its customers. This includes using your position to advance your own personal gain or advantage on the basis of sensitive information gained during your employment, whether or not you obtained this gain or advantage at the expense of HSBC Canada or any of its customers.

Conflict of interest rules apply to all transactions made in your account or in the accounts of persons over which you have influence (particularly those owned by persons living in the same residence as you), whether those transactions are made by you or by those over whom you have influence directly or indirectly. In addition, you may have liability under the law if you, your family, friends or others obtains a personal gain or advantage on the basis of confidential information obtained directly or indirectly from you. See Global Personal Account Dealing Policy for more information.

While staff members have personal lives and private interests outside their work, as an employee of a financial institution, you must manage your personal financial and business affairs to avoid conflicts of interest, or even the appearance of any conflict of interest. When a conflict of interest confronts you in the performance of your job, you must disclose its existence promptly to your direct manager or local Regulatory Compliance officer, fully describing the facts giving rise to the conflict, and excuse yourself from any decision made with respect to the transaction.

While it is impossible to set out all the situations where conflicts may arise, the subject areas listed below are examples where a conflict exists or may arise. In some circumstances, an employee may be prohibited from acting in a certain way. In others, the employee’s actions may be permitted with prior disclosure and approval.

Accordingly, you should follow your department procedure to report or escalate any real, potential or perceived conflict of interest situation as outlined in this document.

Activities that are prohibited
Approval of credit, waiver of fees
You must not participate in the consideration or approval of any extension of credit, or any waiver of fees or other exceptional transaction between HSBC Canada and yourself or anyone in your immediate family, or with other entities or organizations in which you or any member of your immediate family have a significant financial interest.
Transactions and relationships for ordinary banking, trust or investment services with HSBC Canada on standard terms and conditions (such as a safe deposit box, a regular chequing or savings account, a certificate of deposit or a discount brokerage, trust or investment relationship on the same terms and conditions available to other customers) do not violate this prohibition.

Prohibited investment activity
You are also prohibited from knowingly selling (directly or indirectly) a security of the Bank or its affiliates which you do not own or have not fully paid for (also known as short selling), or knowingly buying or selling (directly or indirectly) a call or put option in respect of a security of the Bank or its affiliates.

In making your personal investment decisions, you must carefully avoid the use of any confidential information you have obtained through your employment. In order to avoid potential conflicts in this area, you should avoid investments in the securities of any corporate customer for which you currently have or anticipate having direct or indirect account responsibilities. (See Global Personal Account Dealing Policy.)

Gifts, Entertainment and Other Advantages
HSBC operates a zero tolerance approach to bribery & corruption, which includes any attempt to use gifts, entertainment, charitable giving or sponsorship, to improperly influence, bribe or corrupt. It is unethical, illegal and contrary to good corporate governance to offer, promise or provide, or to request, agree to receive, or accept any gift or entertainment that could be intended to induce or reward either an improper performance to any person or to influence a Public Official.

It is accepted that the giving and receiving of reasonable gifts or entertainment can be part of normal business activity and conduct. It is also accepted that the giving and receiving of gifts or entertainment are a common part of building and maintaining cordial business relationships. The Global Anti-bribery & Corruption (the ‘Policy’) does not prohibit the giving and receiving of gifts or entertainment, but restricts their provision and acceptance to situations where they fall within applicable laws and could not reasonably be used or perceived as bribes or improper inducements. Gifts of cash or cash equivalents may not be given or received under any circumstances. In certain jurisdictions, local laws and regulations may impose more restrictive standards than those contained in the Policy. Under such circumstances, the more restrictive standards always apply.

HSBC Canada employees must refer to and comply with the Policy and any additional local Gifts and Entertainment procedures and guidance issued by HSBC Canada.

Anti-Bribery & Corruption, Financial Crime Compliance. An advantage offered or accepted in contravention of any of the requirements may have consequences and may be referred to Human Resources as a policy violation and/or performance issue in line with HSBC’s Consequence Management policies.

Your business line or function may have requirements that are more stringent than those set out in the Global Policy, in which case you are required to comply with such requirements.

Loans and Borrowing
As an employee, you are not permitted to borrow from or personally lend to any of HSBC Canada’s suppliers, customers, or other employees. You may receive credit on customary terms in connection with the purchase of goods and services from a commercial establishment (e.g., merchant credit card, furniture store financing) without violating this prohibition. You may also borrow from other financial institutions, including bank correspondents of HSBC Canada, in the ordinary course of their business. You may borrow to contribute to your RRSP account(s).

Employee Financial Services privileges
Employee account and banking privileges are for employee personal use only. Obtaining special rates for personal business use, speculation, or transactions on behalf of relatives, friends or associates is strictly prohibited.

Soliciting or accepting legacies or other favours
You are not allowed to solicit any legacy or other favour granted by an individual or organization where your relationship to the individual or organization arose primarily during the course of your employment.

Employment of relatives and personal intimate relationships between employees
Employment of relatives and situations of consensual intimate relationships between employees, may give rise to a conflict of interest and/or claims of harassment. Inappropriate relationships include those between two individuals who have a reporting relationship or where one has influence over the other’s employment activities. If such a consensual intimate relationship develops, it is the more senior person’s responsibility to immediately advise his or her manager or the HR function for appropriate action (such as reassignment to a different role at HSBC Canada). See the Employment of Relatives Policy.
Activities that require disclosure

Fiduciary appointments and powers of attorney
You must not accept a personal fiduciary appointment or power of attorney for anyone who is a customer of, or supplier to, HSBC Canada (for example, as an executor or trustee), whether alone or with any other person, bank or other institution. The only exception to the above is accepting a fiduciary appointment or power of attorney for close family relationships where an actual or a potential conflict with your obligations to HSBC Canada does not exist. Where the requirements of a business have more stringent policy requirements, you are required to comply with such requirements.

Outside Activities
Other potential sources of conflict can arise through your engagement in outside employment positions or conducting personal businesses. You must complete an Outside Activities Authorization Form to disclose these activities in order to adequately assess and manage potential conflicts. You must report and obtain approval from your line manager and the respective stakeholders before engaging in external activities.

Outside Activities requiring disclosure and approval
Complete an Outside Activities Authorization Form in the following situations and in any other situations where you believe that a potential conflict may exist:

- Engaging in any business, outside of the employment with HSBC or its affiliates, including any family-owned business or the providing of private investment advice;

- Accepting a paid or unpaid appointment of an influential role (e.g. officer, director, partner, trustee, spokesperson, adviser or consultant), to any external organization (e.g. incorporated company, industry body, charity, trust, limited liability partnership);

- Seeking or accepting a nomination or appointment to any public office or government-sponsored agency or advisory board. This also applies to any role that involves contact with public officials;

- Acquiring or holding private investments of 5% or more (3% in the case of listed entities) of any business, fund, real estate syndicate or partnership. This could be as a part or full owner, controller, partner or holder of voting equity; or

- Taking on a directorship with an outside organization (other than HSBC or its affiliates) at the specific request of HSBC.

If you are licensed or registered with a regulatory body, you may have additional disclosure requirements beyond what is described in this Statement of Business Principles and Code of Ethics. Those requirements do not replace your disclosure obligations under this Statement of Business Principles and Code of Ethics.

Respect for Our Customers

Question: I have been working with a customer for over a decade, and he has asked if I would be willing to serve as the trustee for his children in the event of his death. Can I?

Answer: You cannot accept an appointment as personal fiduciary (e.g., executor or trustee) or power of attorney for anyone who is a customer or vendor of HSBC, whether alone or with any other person or institution, except in close family relationships or unless you have notified your supervisor or department head and have obtained prior written approval of Human Resources. And you can never accept such an appointment where an actual or potential conflict with your obligations to HSBC would arise. Also, keep in mind that you cannot solicit any legacy or other favor granted by an individual or organization where your relationship to the individual or organization arose primarily during the course of your employment.
Outside Directorships

Other potential sources of conflict of interest include outside directorship, public trusteeship, or role through which action is taken on behalf of a non-Group entity, whether the entity involved is of a for-profit or non-profit nature.

Prior to accepting any outside directorship, public trusteeship, or role as described above you must obtain the required approvals.

The following are the only exemptions:
- The entity involved is a non-profit organization, AND
- It is not an HSBC customer, AND
- The outside directorship is held for totally non-work related/personal reasons, AND
- The outside directorship does not place a reputational risk on HSBC.

You should ensure any roles you are assuming do not or cannot be perceived as presenting a conflict with your employment at HSBC Canada, and do not carry onerous responsibilities which might impinge upon your activities for HSBC Canada.

Fees for any appointments should be waived or surrendered to HSBC Canada if the appointment is made at the request/direction of HSBC Canada, or the role is approved by HSBC Canada for business reasons.

For involvement in for-profit organizations, the HSBC Group has directors’ and officers’ liability insurance which provides protection for Group directors and officers in their capacity as executive or non-executive directors of non-HSBC entities, which they assume at the request and direction of HSBC Canada, or with HSBC Canada’s approval for business reasons. For Group insurance purposes, before accepting any outside directorships or actions taken on behalf of for-profit non-HSBC entities, you must make due enquiry in writing of the entities involved as to the extent of:
- any indemnification in respect of directors’ and officers’ liability under the entity AND
- any directors’ and officers’ liability insurance taken out by the entity

Finally, you should maintain records of all directorships you hold or have held during at least the last ten (10) years, in case the information is required by regulatory authorities.

Holding of public office

The holding of public office, elective or otherwise, may give rise to a conflict of interest or could prevent us from having normal business relationships with the governmental body involved, including depository relationships and the purchase of its debt obligations.

Employees must obtain the required approval prior to seeking public office or accepting an appointment to one. The Outside Activities Authorization Form must be completed in this situation. A public office means any position in the province, municipality, city, town, village or federal governments and includes school districts, public authorities and other comparable governmental subdivisions or agencies.
Investment Activity

You also must not engage in personal investment activities that create a conflict of interest or that in any way constitute market abuse. Certain employees, due to the nature of their role and area business ("covered workers") are subject to additional oversight of their personal account dealings. This may include restrictions or pre-approval by Regulatory Compliance for certain types of investments and trading activities.

You should also consult the Global Personal Account Dealing Policy for additional requirements that may apply.

Personal Gain

You must not use confidential information about HSBC Canada, or any of its affiliates, employees, customers, or suppliers entrusted to you, or that you otherwise became aware of in the course of your employment, for your personal gain or the personal gain of your family, friends, or others.

All intellectual property created or otherwise developed by you or other employees of HSBC in the scope of HSBC employment is the exclusive property of HSBC and you may not utilize any such property for your personal gain or the personal gain of your family, friends or others.

Information about HSBC

Because of your position, you may obtain information about your business unit or HSBC not otherwise available to the public. You cannot disclose confidential financial or other proprietary information concerning any of these entities to outsiders until it has been published in reports to security holders or otherwise made generally available to the public.

Information about Our Customers and Employees

We expect you to treat information entrusted to HSBC Canada by our customers and employees as confidential. This includes information relating to deposit and loan balances, information concerning the management, financial condition and future plans of our customers’ businesses, employee/salary information and information obtained in the course of fiduciary relationships. You must not disclose confidential information to anyone either inside or outside HSBC Canada who does not have a legitimate need to know the information. Your obligation to maintain the confidentiality of information continues even after you leave HSBC Canada. Please refer to our guidelines respecting customer information and privacy protection policies.

We consider employee files, personal bank accounts and other information concerning our employees as strictly confidential, not to be viewed without a business purpose, or disclosed to outsiders by fellow employees or supervisors, and the property of HSBC Canada. It is prohibited to look up the account information... of friends, family, employees or clients outside of the normal course of business. Employees should only view their personal account information via Personal Internet Banking (PIB) or other public systems such as ATMs. Using internal HSBC systems to look up your account information is considered inappropriate use of these systems. You may inspect your own employee records but may not copy or remove any documents in your file without permission from Human Resources. Requests for any such information should be made in accordance with HSBC Canada’s Employee Privacy Code.

Use of HSBC’s Computer Systems
Use of HSBC Canada’s computer systems provides employees access to confidential customer and employee information based on the business/support function(s) being performed. Employees are granted access to HSBC Canada’s various computer systems to perform their job duties. Each employee is expected to protect the access granted to him or her and to keep any associated passwords confidential at all times. Any unauthorized access to, collection, use, or disclosure of personal information is a violation of Canadian privacy laws and must be reported through the Cyber Incident Response & Threat process.

Employees should be aware that the use of e-mail, electronic communication and internet facilities of any kind (whether for personal or business purposes) is subject to monitoring. Therefore, the use of any of the HSBC Group’s devices or systems, and use of the Internet from HSBC premises, will not be private.

HSBC Records
HSBC’s books and records and other essential data are to be maintained with accuracy and honesty in strict compliance with applicable laws, accounting principles and management’s general authorization. When preparing such records, employees are not to make false or misleading entries in records nor permit the existence of any fund or asset or liability which is not fully and properly recorded on HSBC’s books. No transactions, agreements, programs, plans, obligations or payments shall be entered into, made or recorded with the understanding that their use is for other than the stated purpose. Employees shall not make any false or misleading statements about such records or conceal information from management or HSBC’s auditors. We expect you to fully cooperate with our internal and independent auditors and counsel.

External Communications
HSBC Canada has a national presence in select businesses and international businesses enhanced by a unique partnership with HSBC Holdings plc and its affiliates. As such, we may comment on business, financial and community issues when called upon.

However, all media inquiries must be directed to Communications without further comment. Likewise, Communications must coordinate all ongoing media contact. This ensures the preparation of official statements is consistent with corporate policy, contacts are monitored and anticipated news coverage is properly managed.

Any employees wishing to speak to media or present at external events (either as a panelist or keynote speaker) must be licensed by Communications to do so.

Communications must approve any articles, or other materials that employees may wish to submit to the media for publication. For further information, please refer to the Group Communications Policy.

Social Media
While we should be proud of the work we do and the people we work with, we must also remember that what we do and say online matters – just like what we do and say at work. There are also legal, regulatory and safety considerations to keep in mind. For example, sharing personal information about HSBC’s customers or employees without appropriate permission is a breach of privacy legislation.

Individual employees are not permitted to create any social media presence on behalf of HSBC, nor publish anything which could be interpreted as representing the views or opinions of, or offer advice on any HSBC products or services, unless authorized through the procedures set out in the Global Marketing Social Media policy.

Employees are encouraged to review HSBC Social Media Principles, which are designed to assist and protect employees to engage with HSBC content online in a responsible way.

Your business line or function may have requirements that are more stringent than that of the HSBC Social Media Principles, in which case you are required to comply with such requirements.
Respect for Our Customers

Customers
HSBC is committed to offering quality products and services in the interest of customers and ensuring that customers are free to exercise choice based on a competitive marketplace. Regarding its products and services, HSBC will present information in a manner that is clear, simple, and not misleading over the life cycle of the product or service. In dealing with customers, HSBC is committed to providing an environment free of discrimination.

HSBC is also committed to providing fair outcomes for our customers:

• We know our customers and understand their needs – we actively listen to them and ask the right questions.
• We design products that meet our customers’ different needs, are competitive, and are understandable.
• Our products and services provide a balanced exchange of value for our customers and for HSBC.
• Throughout our sales and servicing, we are efficient, transparent, and customer focused.
• We manage our products and services so that our customers’ experiences are in line with the expectations we set.

In acting in the best interests of consumers, HSBC is committed to being in compliance with the consumer protection requirements set out in the Bank Act (Canada) and its related regulations, the voluntary codes and industry commitments made within the financial services sector, and guidance published by the Financial Consumer Agency of Canada.
Financial Markets

HSBC Canada participates in financial markets in a manner that upholds market integrity, ensuring that the orderly and transparent functioning of those markets is not disrupted. All employees in their personal financial dealings, as well as those employees involved in market activity should ask whether a reasonable observer would think their transactions and activities meet the following market outcomes:

- We seek to prevent and will proactively identify actions and behaviours that constitute market misconduct, and respond appropriately.
- We execute trades in a timely, clear and controlled manner ensuring that optimal execution is achieved for our customers and that HSBC trades are not manipulative.
- We manage conflicts of interest and appropriately handle information to reduce the opportunity for misuse.

Respect for Our Competition

HSBC Canada believes in the free enterprise system and is dedicated to the maintenance of fair competition in an open market. Employees are to avoid any circumstances that will, or would appear to, violate competition laws.

Employees shall refrain from discussing or entering into any arrangements or understandings with competitors concerning prices, production limits, allocation of customers, products or territories, boycotting certain customers or suppliers or in any way engaging in other anti-competitive practices. Normal business activities occasionally require contacts with competitors, but on such occasions discussion of any of the above-mentioned subjects must be avoided. Any violation of these conditions should be reported immediately to the Legal department or through HSBC Confidential.

Whenever any doubt exists as to the legality of a particular situation, advice from the Legal department should be sought before engaging in this activity. In this same spirit, employees should refrain from making disparaging comments about the products or services of HSBC Canada’s competitors.

Respect for Our Community and Environment

Sustainability

Sustainability means building our business for the long term by balancing social, environmental and economic considerations in the decisions we make. This enables us to foster growth which is both sustainable and commercially viable.

Now more than ever, there is a need to develop the skills, business innovation and low-carbon solutions needed to secure long-term prosperity for all. For HSBC, there are three key elements of sustainable growth which we can influence.

Sustainable finance

As one of the world’s largest banking and financial services organisations, HSBC aspires to be a leading global partner in the transition to a low-carbon future. We have committed to provide USD100 billion to sustainable financing and investments by 2025. Improving the efficiency of our own operations is also part of our commitments, and we will source 100 per cent of our electricity from renewable sources by 2030.

Sustainable networks and entrepreneurship

Sustainable growth is supported by resilient and responsible international trade networks. We work with our corporate partners and non-governmental organisations to support business practices that protect the environment and human rights, while helping new companies emerge and grow.

Future skills

In a rapidly changing world, workplace skills and financial literacy are more important than ever. We support our employees, customers and communities and to develop the financial capability and employability skills they need to succeed in the global economy.

In Canada, our employees have a say in what charitable causes we support and every employee is offered one paid day per year to volunteer with a registered charity of their choice.

For more information on our approach and how to get involved, visit the Corporate Sustainability intranet and sign-up to the HSBC Canada Volunteer Network.
Government and Public Affairs
 HSBC advocates the democratic system and is committed to upholding the political, legal and governmental processes of the local, provincial and federal systems of Canada and other countries where HSBC operates.

Further, HSBC recognizes that participation by citizens in civic and political activities is necessary for this system to function properly. HSBC encourages employees to exercise their right to vote, to participate actively in the political process, to be informed on public issues and on the positions and qualifications of public officials and candidates for public office and to support issues, candidates and parties of their choice, as individual citizens.

Employees should not use HSBC Canada’s name, or the name of HSBC Holdings plc or any of their affiliated entities, either directly or indirectly, to endorse any public issue, political candidate, political party or business interest, product or service, unless otherwise authorized by Communications.

Political activities and contributions
 HSBC prohibits employees from using its funds or property to support candidates for political office or political parties or committees. HSBC does not use corporate funds to make contributions to federal, provincial or municipal candidates or committees. We prohibit the use of HSBC employees or property, including office supplies, printing facilities, postage and equipment, to promote political candidates or parties. HSBC prohibits employees from making any expenditures for such purposes through travel and expense accounts and does not allow recovery of any such expenditure.

How Do I Ask Questions or Report Violations?

Asking Questions
This Statement of Business Principles and Code of Ethics is a general guideline, rather than a complete set of rules and regulations for all situations. Should any question arise as to the interpretation of a particular principle or situation, you should refer your question to your manager or department head, HRDirect or unit head.

Employees who violate this Statement of Business Principles and Code of Ethics or fail to report known violations of this Statement of Business Principles and Code of Ethics may be subject to consequence management, up to and including termination.

Reporting Violations
If asked or ordered to participate in, or you otherwise become aware of, any event violating HSBC Canada’s policies, applicable laws and government regulations, or both, you should report the information immediately to your supervisor, or department head, HR Direct, or HSBC Confidential.

You may report violations confidentially and anonymously via HSBC Confidential, which is available 24/7. Investigations of all concerns will be carried out thoroughly, independently and in a timely manner by the appropriate subject matter experts.

No Retaliation
Reports of violations made under this Statement of Business Principles and Code of Ethics will be kept in confidence except as may otherwise be required to protect HSBC’s interests. HSBC recognizes the importance of providing a safe environment for individuals to report incidents of possible unlawful activity or violations of policy and it is improper to take any adverse job action against an individual for reporting in good faith such activity or violation to HSBC or to a government agency.
