Example: How interest is calculated

1. Customer deposits USD$250,000 into the HSBC USD Small Business HRSA on March 16, 2020. For this example, there were no funds in this account prior to this deposit, there is no change in the balance during the month and the funds remain deposited for the entire month of February.
2. Between March 16 to March 31, the balance has a total annual interest rate of 0.90%.
3. Daily interest earned is calculated as follows: (0.90% total annual interest rate/360 days) multiplied by the daily closing balance of USD $250,000 = USD $6.25 of interest earned each day.
4. On April 1, 2020 the Monthly Interest Amount for March is calculated by adding up each daily interest earned (USD$6.25 x 16 days) = USD $100.00.

Interest earned between March 16 to March 31 will be USD $100.00 and it will be paid to the HSBC USD Small Business HRSA on April 1, 2020.
